

LABOR'S PROGRESS PLEASES GOMPERS

President of American Federation Reviews Achievements and Issues for 1916.

SAYS TRADE UNIONISM
GIVES RIGHT TO CHEER

Politics and the Mexican Situation
Two Most Important Points
Discussed by Leader.

Politics and the Mexican situation are two of the most important points taken up by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement made public last evening on "Labor's Achievements and Issues for 1916." Saying that every branch of the American Federation of Labor has made "definite progress in securing for its members greater advantages in those things which are fundamental of betterment in all relations of life," and that in organizations the success has been phenomenal, President Gompers says:

"Labor day, 1916, brings to the workers of America the right to cheer and confidence in the trade union movement. There have been many things that have proved its fundamental principles; there have been opportunities that have tested its practical efficiency. Through them all the trade union movement has made sure progress and gained in confidence vision for the future."

"Taking the labor movement as a whole, there has been greater progress in securing the eight-hour day or the shorter workday than in any other similar period of time. The meaning of these victories can only be fully understood in the light of full understanding of the meaning of the eight-hour day. The shorter workday is something more than an economic demand. It is a demand for opportunity, for rest, recuperation and development—things which make life more than mechanical drudgery."

"The workers whose whole periods are short are essentially different from those who are so worn by toil that they have no energy nor mind for other things in life. They become more energetic, more resourceful workers with keener mentality and greater producing power. It inevitably follows that the short-hour workers are the best paid workers. With every reduction in hours there is always a corresponding increase in wages. Wherever demands for the shorter workday and higher wages have been presented and argued by organized workers during the past year, they have met with success. These economic gains have a potent relation to the social side of life."

Won Legislative Victories.
He points out that shortening the period of work lengthens the period of development, and that increasing wages give the workers the means for taking advantage of the shorter workday.

"Economic achievements are the basis upon which the workers can secure social and political progress. The power which secures these achievements is the power that will secure justice for them in every other relation. "Power through the workers' organization means political power. There must be an economic basis in order to give political activity reasons for existence and a program. By organizing its economic power to secure political protection and by adhering strictly to a non-partisan political program, the American Federation of Labor has won glorious legislative victories. The legislation which has been sought by organized labor "is always to establish larger and better opportunities for life and freedom"; that organized labor "does not seek through legislation to take things from workers which they can do for themselves"—these principles applying to workers in private industry. In the case of governmental workers, where conditions may be fixed only through legislation, legislation to this effect must be secured, he states. Calling attention to the record of legislative achievements of the labor movement since 1900, when the non-partisan political party was inaugurated, he says it is "one of splendid victories."

The problem of human freedom was not ended by the work of Lincoln. There still remained a class bound by involuntary servitude, the seamen. The seamen's act brings freedom to these workers. It makes American seas sacred to freedom, a country upon which a bondman may not step without losing his legal fetters. "Freedom and an opportunity to protect themselves, the seamen are pressing their demands for higher wages and better conditions. The thing which is the anti-trust act contains the most advanced concept of freedom. The laborer is a human being, not a commodity or article of commerce."

Political Issues.

"As Labor day, 1916, comes in one of the most critical political campaigns since the civil war period, it is well to call attention to the big issue of the campaign which has a national as well as an international relation. It is the attitude of the political parties toward questions of humanity and human welfare. The party now in power has in its legislative achievements placed the highest valuation upon human life and human attributes that has ever been declared and enacted by any political party in power."

The question that concerns the workers is how to hold their place of advantage and how to secure from political parties still greater opportunities for freedom. The thing which is fundamental is section 6 of the Clayton anti-trust act, the labor of a human being is not a commodity or article of commerce. The representatives of the American Federation of Labor went to the political parties and asked them to declare themselves upon this principle. The answers that the political parties gave are in their platforms where all may read."

"The democratic party openly and favorably declared and emphasized its position. The republican party took no notice of labor's request that they declare themselves upon that which the workers considered of greatest importance to them."

"The international issue that now comes closest to the labor movement is the policy of our government toward Mexico. The cause of humanity is in the balance in Mexico. The people there are trying to work out their own problems and to establish their own ideals of political, social and economic justice."

Largely Mexican Problem.

"The problem of industrial warfare in the states of the southwest is largely a Mexican problem. With low standards of life and work prevailing upon the 15,000,000 of Mexicans, there exists an obstacle to the establishment of higher standards within the United States."

There are capitalists and exploiting interests of the United States who, because they have property in Mexico (often corruptly and dishonestly obtained), desire to maintain governmental agencies by which they hold the people in subjection and deny to them the opportunity for protecting themselves through the organized labor movement and other opportunities for growth and development. These selfish exploiting interests are concentrating their political power in the present campaign to secure a different policy on the part of our government toward Mexico. Even under the guise of intervention, no matter how unnecessary and unwarranted, the advocates of that policy really aim at the conquest and annexation of Mexico. A few of the most reckless, such as the Otis and Hearst interests, come out brazenly in the demand for intervention, invasion, conquest and annexation of Mexico. Of course, every effort must be made to safeguard the lives and the property of our people living along the border line, but who can honestly say that the Mexican marauders were the only offenders? The allied forces of greed and profit would deny the Mexican people the opportunity for their development; they would gladly embroil the United States in an unnecessary and unwarrantable war with Mexico. To them property rights, profits, are held far more sacred than human beings, international honor and human liberty.

"These are some of the issues that primarily concern the workers and all other wage-paying citizens of the United States; they are the issues upon which every wage-earner—every citizen—must make his own decision, not only in his everyday activity, but also at the polls on election day."

OUTINGS PLANNED FOR LABOR DAY

Picnics, Auto Races, a Regatta and Celebrations of Various Kinds in Prospect.

Outings, picnics, automobile races, a regatta and celebrations of various kinds by various associations will be the order of the day tomorrow, when the citizens of Washington unite in celebration of Labor day.

Members of the Central Labor Union will hold an outing at Chesapeake Beach, where sports will be indulged in and addresses made.

Lovers of speed will find five automobile and two motor cycle races awaiting them at 2 o'clock at Benning, under the auspices of the American Auto Racing Association. The other athletic event of great interest tomorrow will be the regatta of the Middle States Association of Amateur Oarsmen, to be held on the upper Potomac in the afternoon. The regatta is under auspices of the Potomac Boat Club, and will show some of the best oarsmen of many states of the Union.

Other Outings Planned.
Among outings given by various bodies will be the picnic of the German Orphan Asylum in Anacostia. A drill by forty children will be a feature, and the program will include dancing and the serving of refreshments to the little ones. K. O. Piel, Philip Ditten and Mrs. Rupertus are in charge of the arrangements for the outing.

Out at Mount Rainier, Md., tomorrow will see the opening of a two-week carnival for the benefit of community betterment, running good roads. The celebration will open tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock with a big parade, in which the Mount Rainier fire department will take a prominent place. The entries will include decorated automobiles and industrial trucks, etc.

After the parade there is to be a formal opening of the carnival, with addresses by Jackson H. Ralston and Sydney E. Rutledge, rival candidates for election to Congress. At 8 o'clock in the evening will take place the crowning of the queen of the carnival.

Firemen to Celebrate.
The volunteer fire department of Hyattsville, Md., together with the Women's Auxiliary, Company F, 1st Maryland Infantry, will hold a celebration tomorrow at Zantinger's Park. John Adams is chairman of the entertainment committee.

A "Tax day" for the benefit of families of national guardsmen from the District will be held tomorrow by the Fire City Tax Association. All proceeds will be turned over to the Citizens' Welfare Association.

On account of tomorrow being a holiday, the concert of the marine barracks will be omitted.

Legal Holiday Tomorrow.
Tomorrow is a legal holiday with the government departments and the thousands of government employees will join the throngs of those observing the day in all parts of the city and nearby places. Many government clerks have planned visits to other cities over Labor day. Many men will return to their home towns to register for voting in November.

The public library will be open tomorrow at the usual hours, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Takoma Park branch will be open from 2 to 5 p.m.
